Ask Anita!

Dear Anita,

My husband and I moved to Canada in September and now it is January. We are from Brazil, and this is our first time to live in a cold country. Our two young kids love playing outside. Yesterday they had fun making a snowman for the first time. However, I am worried about the cold temperature. When is it too cold for children to play outside? Should kids play outside when it's five or ten degrees below zero (Celsius), or when it's fifteen or twenty or thirty degrees below zero?

Jackie

Dear Anita,

Next month my wife and kids and I are going to move to Abu Dhabi in the United Arab Emirates. I have a new job there, and we are all very excited about moving. But we are from cool, cloudy England and this is our first time to live in a hot, sunny country. In summer the temperature can get as high as 45 degrees Celsius, and sometimes there are sandstorms. What advice can you give us about living in a hot climate?

William

Dear Anita,

Yesterday our teacher told us about global warming and how the climate is changing. She told us that there will be more storms and floods and droughts in the future. Anita, I'm just ten years old, but is there anything I can do to help stop global warming?
