6 Things to do on Earth Day

Scientist and author¹ Carl Sagan once said that our earth is home, and that, “On it everyone you love, everyone you know, everyone you ever heard of, every human being that ever was lived out their lives,” and that, “Like it or not, for the moment the Earth is where we make our stand.” Earth Day was first celebrated² in 1970, and now more than 193 countries around the world have Earth Day events³ every year on 22 April. At these events people show their interest in protecting our environment⁴. If you are too busy to go to an Earth Day event, or if you live too far away, one website (www.earthday.org) suggests six things that you can do to help our planet⁵. First, you might eat less meat – it takes less land to grow vegetables. Second, stop using and throwing away plastic bottles and other plastic products⁶. Third, plant a tree. Fourth, buy and use fewer things and throw away fewer things (recycle⁷ things such as paper). Fifth, travel to Washington, D.C. on 22 April and learn more about our environment, and how science can protect it, at the “March for Science”. Sixth, think of your own ideas that will help protect the environment. For example, your classroom might write letters to the president or prime minister of your country. Be creative⁸. The important thing is to do something! For now, Earth is our only home!
